Years were consumed in the training of biologists, and still more years were required for studies to be made. Finally, however, state and federal game departments had good basic information to be used in the setting of seasons and bag limits on practically all species of game birds and mammals.

Director Gottschalk went on to say,

The professional worker will accept the foregoing without debate, and should anyone have a question as to the role of the units in wildlife conservation, all he needs to do is review the amazing record of 30 years' accomplishment reported in this booklet. In these three decades we have witnessed the beginning of the profession of wildlife management, and an acceptance by the